Washington, Dec. 6. — Herman Hagedorn, United States minister to Denmark, has forwarded to this country a copy of proposed changes in Danish labor laws which would limit profits of business men, fix prices to be charged for goods, and make at least ten times as great as the cost of the law infict a violation of the ultra profit realized.

To apply the law, a business council of 16 members would be created, consisting of representatives of the government, trade unions, and business men and farmers. All concerns believed to be making too large a profit or charging too high prices would be being otherwise against the interests of the community may be information desired, except "secret processes of a technical nature. In the event of a refusal the firm is liable to be investigated and the council may call upon the state or municipal authorities to enforce its orders.

Where profits are too high the council may recommend that the minister of the Interior fix the prices by law. Such recommendation may be made by a minimum of four of the 16 members of the council. A limit may also be placed on the annual surplus earnings of any firm.

Another measure would make all the goods imported by the consumer (or importer's) profit, wholesale, and one retail price. The government would set the price of each article and the import price of each article must be the same as the goods. This price is exclusive of freight charges. Detailed prices for each article are left to the business council to determine. Farm products sold without special license are exempt from the proposed law, except in specific cases where the business council may decide.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Dec. 6.—Detachments of United States cavalry are being sent to the coal fields to suppress any illusion that miners may have that they will be permitted to continue their strike. At the town of Monarch camp all miners were rushed to the union hall at the point of a gun. At the same time orders to work in Cowsenville similar methods were applied, and these towns are now working. There have been no deaths. It is reported, A large number of miners who are deserting from the strike are being sent to military orders and will be proceeded against on the charge of violating military orders. In fact, the Major Doan, in command of the troops, acknowledged that these men
